為選舉國民大會代表

介紹給公民的一點意見

國民大會最重大的任務，是制定憲法，奠定國家的基礎，參加國民大會的代表，所負的使命是何等重大！因之我們對於這回選舉代表，不能不特別的愼重。

至少要合乎下列的幾個標準，才可以當我們的代表——

對國家——

對社會——

要熱心公益

要切實為市民謀福利

不是我們的標準要特別提高，因為當此國難嚴重的時候，出席的代表，目前就要負起救國的責任來以拯救四萬萬五千萬的人民。

我們所知道可以合乎我們上面的標準的是——

Chinese To Vote In First Major Poll Of History

Citizens Pick Out Delegates To Big Congress

Session Will Discuss New Constitution For China

MANY CANDIDATES ALREADY CHOSEN

Voting Slated On July 20, 21, 22; Results Due August 15

CHINESE who have their citizenship duly registered will go to the polls on July 20, 21 and 22 in the first major election in the history of this country to pick the 1200 delegates for the National People's Congress to be held in the spacious new building in Nanking on November 12 for the important task of discussing and approving the constitution.

In all, 1700 persons will take part in the Congress. In addition to the 1200 elected delegates, the 260 members of the Central Executive Committee and Central Supervisory Committee of the Kuomintang will be ex-officio delegates. Two hundred and forty persons will also be present in the capacity of appointed delegates.

Candidates for the elections have already been chosen in many cities and provinces while in others, the preliminary elections have yet to be held. Work in Hopei, Chahar, Kwangsi and several other provinces is understood to be progressing slowly and it is doubtful if the elections may take place on time there.

Results of the elections will be pronounced before August 15 and the elected delegates should be notified of the election before that date, the National Government has ordered.

To Set Date

In order to avoid a possible delay of the Congress, the National Government has also ordered that all preliminary elections for the candidates to run for the major election this July be completed before the end of this month.

In addition to the study and approval of the constitution, which was last drafted by the Legislative Yuan after a prolonged deliberation on the basis of the first draft accomplished by Dr. John C. H. Wu, prominent jurist and member of the Legislative Yuan, the Congress will also set a date for the enforcement of the constitution.

Congress Postponed

The Congress was originally scheduled to be held on November 12, last year, but unavoidably postponed for a year because of the stupendous work involved in registration of citizens and the preliminary elections.

November 12 was picked as the date of the Congress because it marks the birth anniversary of the late Dr. Sun Yat-sen, founder of the Chinese republic.

FORECAST OF THE ELECTIONS OF PEOPLE'S REPRESENTATIVES

(From our Special Correspondent)

Nanking, September 11.

Certain reflections made by foreign and Chinese newspapers on the abuses and irregularities in the preliminary elections of people's representatives have attracted the attention of the Chinese Government. Yesterday an official decree was issued strictly prohibiting election agents or the candidates themselves from giving too elaborate entertainments.

According to election experts, candidates will have to spend more than $5,000 each for dinners and other entertainments in order to be assured of a sufficient number of votes.

The lists of the persons first elected are submitted to the various Municipal or Provincial Elections Control Committees which will ratify the election of about a dozen of the persons first elected. The persons whose election had been ratified will eventually vote for the election of representatives to the future National Assembly of the People. For a person's election to secure ratification he must be persona grata, first of all, with the election of supervisors, then with the central authorities whose duty is to examine the lists of persons first elected. These elections are always influenced by the political factions actually in power.

One can now easily understand why the position of representative of the people is being so keenly contested by the various political parties, for 50% of the representatives will be the future Ministers of State or members of the Legislative and Control Yuan; they may also be appointed to important posts in the provinces or municipalities, and even in the army or navy. Finally, it is they who will elect the President and Vice President of the Republic, the Presidents of the Legislative, the Control and the Examination Yuans and 50% of the members of the two first-named Yuans.

To make his election definite, a candidate must possess a sufficiently large fortune or he must have a certain amount of influence over the persons first elected; he must be sufficiently known to the election supervisors to assure a ratification of his preliminary election; lastly, he must belong to a sufficiently powerful political faction.

Certain Chinese circles have made the following interesting forecast of the results of the elections:

1. Government Parties

(a) The Ching Sae Hui Political Party.--- The leaders are Generals Li Keng Yuan, Huang Fu, Yang Yung Tai, Hsiung Shih Hwei, Wu Teh Chen, the Ministers Chang Kung Chuan, Wu Ting Chang etc. They control five of the Yangtsze Provinces. This Party will probably win 400 seats in the elections.

ELECTION OF REPRESENTATIVES TO NATIONAL PEOPLE'S CONGRESS

The registration of citizens for election as Shanghai representatives to the National People's Congress to be held on November 12 this year at Nanking will commence to-day.

On August 13, the local Tangpu distributed copies of a notice calling upon Chinese citizens in this locality to register with the Citizens Registration Office for the election of Shanghai representatives to the National People's Congress.

The Election Office of the Shanghai Representatives to the National People's Congress is carrying out the work of investigations and registration of citizens. As to the work of investigations of citizens in the French Concession, the Election Office has assigned the 2nd District Kuomintang Branch to undertake the work.

An investigation of citizens in the French Concession was started on August 10. A notice to that effect was sent in advance to the French Consul-General and the French Municipal Council. On August 12, when the 2nd District Kuomintang Branch was carrying on the work of registration of citizens, the French authorities detailed a party of detectives to stop the registration, on the ground that approval had not been obtained from the French authorities. The detectives wanted to take the registrars to the Police Station, but they refrained after an explanation was given. The detectives took away some of the registration forms and instructed that the work of registration must cease.

On the afternoon of the same day, the Election Office opened negotiations with the French Municipal Council. In the meantime, a certain prominent person in the French Concession gave to the French Consul-General an explanation of the registration. Later, the French authorities acknowledged that a misunderstanding had taken place. On the evening of August 12, the copies of the registration form taken to the Police Station were returned to the Election Office. The French authorities have indicated that they will not interfere in future and promised to render assistance to the work.

On August 13, the registration of citizens in the French Concession was resumed.

Subject Registration of Citizens in Shanghai

Made by D.I. Sih Tse-liang Forwarded by

The campaign conducted by the Election Office of the Shanghai Municipality Representatives to the National People's Congress for the registration of Chinese citizens throughout Shanghai, which started on August 18, was officially concluded on August 19 and detailed statistics showing the number of forms distributed and filled in are in the course of compilation. According to information from the Election Office, located at the City Government Road, off Route Ghisi, the result of the campaign is unsatisfactory owing to the fact that the period allowed was too short in consideration of the vast area to be covered, and also to the fact that a number of schools failed to supply volunteers for the work when requested to do so. It is learned that the Election Office will resume the campaign by establishing registration centres at various parts of Shanghai where those who have not received the forms during the previous period should apply for registration. The date for the second movement and the venues of these centres will be decided in a few days and announced in the local Chinese press and if possible, broadcasted from local radio stations.

Subject Résumé on the Registration of Chinese Citizens Sponsored by the National Government.

Made by D.I. Sih Tse-liang Forwarded by [signature]

The registration of Chinese citizens, which is now proceeding in Shanghai, is a preliminary to the election of delegates to the National Congress to be held in November, 1936, at Nanking. This registration is one of the important tasks which the National Government formulated a long time ago and is essential to the convention of the National Congress as outlined by the Kuomintang principles for the reconstruction of China. It has been rendered necessary by the fact that China lacks proper records of each individual citizen due to the omission in the past of compiling vital statistics and keeping a proper census of the population.

The Kuomintang principles provide the reconstruction of China in three periods, namely :-

1st Period - Military operations.

2nd Period - Political Tutelage.

3rd Period - Constitutional Government.

The first period commenced in 1926 with the inauguration of the anti-Northern Expedition by the Revolutionary Forces from Canton and terminated with the occupation of North China by the Expeditionary troops in 1929.

The second period followed in 1930 and terminated in 1935.

In 1936, China entered the period of Constitutional Government.

The Kuomintang principles stipulate that during the period of Political Tutelage, a complete census of the population and surveys of districts should be taken, an efficient police system should be organized, roads should be constructed throughout the country, so that genuine local self-government may be established in every province. When more than half of the provinces in the country have established local self-governments in all their districts, the period of Constitutional Government would commence and a National Congress would be assembled to decide on the adoption and promulgation of the Constitution.

Most of these stipulations were carried out by the National Government during the period of Political Tutelage, 1930-1935. The first meeting of the C.E.C. of the Kuomintang held on December 4, 1935 after the 5th Plenary Session of the Kuomintang in November, 1935, decided to convoke the National Congress on November 12, 1936, from which date will commence the period of Constitutional Government.

Owing to the lack of proper statistics regarding each individual citizen of the Republic of China, a registration of all Chinese citizens is therefore necessary as a preliminary to the Congress and at the same time to supplement previous unreliable census statistics.

This registration will entitle a citizen not only to vote in the election of representatives to the National Congress, but also to enjoy the following important rights :-

1) Referendum - the right to pass laws or to vote on laws.
2) Initiative - the right to introduce or enact legislation direct by the people.
3) Repeal - the right to annul any act.
4) Election - the right to vote and to be voted for.

The rules governing the qualifications of citizenship provides that the following are not eligible to citizenship or to vote or to be voted for :-

3) Those who have been deprived of their civil rights by the Judicial Authorities.
4) Those who have been prohibited from managing property.
5) Those mentally unbalanced.
6) Opium smokers or narcotic addicts.

In view of Item No.6, it is obvious that the registration of citizens cannot be proceeded with until a proper registration of opium smokers has first been taken. The prolonged negotiations with the authorities of the Settlement over the enforcement of the anti-opium regulations in the Settlements and the question of registration of opium smokers in the Settlements have delayed the registration of citizens up to the present time.

By means of this registration, the National Government will be able to exercise permanent and complete control over each citizen, and will also be in a position to enforce any administrative laws, such as the collection of an income tax, the enforcement of military conscription, etc.
